We have no known problems other than linter errors.

Note: You will not be able to run our backend server unless you have a .env files setup with our private API key and Database URI. This is necessary for acceptance testing and can be provided upon request.

You must make sure that you are logged in as a reader, and not as a publisher, when viewing an article. You may appear to be logged in and our iframe/backend logic may fault if you are logged in as a publisher.
